OHIO LEGISLATORS WILL CONVENE

HECTIC SESSION EXPECTED BIBLE BILL MAY COME UP

Friends of the Book of Knowledge and a Proposal to Investigate the O. S. U. May Come Before Legislators—Only Reason For Holding Session Is Manifested In the Relief of Allen and Forty-Four Other Counties In the State Which Are In Dire Financial Straits.

will take any action on the governor's long term appointments which are unconfirmed.

Nor is it likely that any effort will be made to legalize the pre-primary convention, altho this has been holding in the center of the Republican stage in the past month.

It is probable that the session will be called for about January 15, and, altho it is scheduled for but one day it is probable that the old expedient of turning the clock back will be resorted to before the final approval on the emergency relief bill can be had.

YATES BUICK CAR STOLEN THIS MORNING

The special one-day session of the Ohio general assembly which is assured to come soon will be the most crowded legislative day in the history of the current body, except, perhaps, the last day of the early session. Altho the lawmakers are coming back for one avowed purpose, that of enacting a single bill to provide relief for Allen and some 44 other counties in the state which are in dire financial straits, present indications point to a much more lively session than was originally anticipated.

Many of the members who are to return will come back with the avowed intention of "blowing off a little steam." Many will have speeches stored up over the several months they have been in recess and will want to get these orationh off their chests. A great many who voted for certain measures have discovered since the recess that these acts have not been working out as they had planned and there will be criticisms galore of the early acts of the assembly.

And then there is the Bible bill. Strong Bible bill advocates have insisted in their replies to the questionnaires sent out by the reconvening committee, that they want this measure brought up for repassage over the governor's veto. They haven't forgotten how one recess was taken by a smooth parliamentary trick which prevented passage of the bill until the solons came back to repass measures over the governor's veto. They still feel that they have not had a chance for their "white alley" and that their pet measure never has been submitted for reconsideration over the governor's objections.

However, there have been several implications that other movements to break into the limelight are on foot in certain quarters. For instance, Senator J. Lowry Miller of Middletown announced a day or so ago that a resolution properly presented ordering a legislative probe of conditions at Ohio State university would find a ready passage. Senator Miller's statement followed the arrest of Dabney Horton, instructor in the English department, for alleged manufacture of intoxicants.

It will be remembered that shortly before the close of the early session Senator J. R. Hopley of Bucyrus introduced a resolution at the behest of a Columbus newspaperman demanding an investigation of the alleged Red tendencies of certain professors at Ohio State. This resolution was buried in committee for lack of support. Now comes Senator Miller with what he believes to be material for another legislative probe.

Then again there have been vague rumors that certain members of the legislative advisory committee to the state building commission will have certain legislation prepared and ready to submit in case any other legislator succeeds in breaking down the barrier.

It is not probable that the senate

LIQUOR RING IS UNCOVERED IN COLUMBUS

Three Men Under Arrest and Fugitive Warrants Out for Thirty-Two Others.

Columbus, O., Jan. 4, (UP).—Convinced that they have struck a telling blow to the Ohio-Michigan illicit liquor traffic, federal authorities today promised new and more startling revelations in connection with the operations of an alleged Columbus-Detroit-Cleveland liquor ring.

With three men under arrest and fugitive warrants out for 32 persons including several former dry agents and three women who were "come-ons" for the ring's clientele, federal and state enforcement officers launched a last concerted drive in an attempt to hasten the ring's demise.

Thirty federal and state agents have been gathering evidence against the ring for three months.

Columbus, Detroit and Cleveland were the bases of the ring's operations, according to officers. Secret storage tanks were maintained at vantage points in the two states while a fleet of trucks kept the tanks filled.

The alcohol, it was said, was obtained in Detroit. The points of dissemination, officers declared, also operated a delivery service and in addition members of the ring hi-jacked as side-line.

Morris Foreleicht and Joe Alshall, described as former dry agents, and the alleged ring-leaders, are under arrest here. Morris Weiss, 33, has been taken into custody at Cleveland and other arrests are imminent, officers declared.

A LONE BANDIT HOLDS UP INN NEAR TOLEDO

Toledo, O., Jan. 4 (UP).—A bandit who displayed two guns, firing them promiscuously, held up the Webster inn on the Dixie highway, near here early today, herded twenty-five patrons into a room, shot Charles Randolph, negro piano player and escaped with an undetermined amount of loot.

The bandit, known to police as "Hougho The Shiek" was identified by the proprietor of the inn as a waiter formerly employed there.

Dancing was at its height when the intruder entered. He clasped a pistol in each hand. A mash covered the upper portion of his face.

The shooting of Randolph was the outcome of a difference between the two when "the shiek" was employed there, police declared.

After herding his victims into the room, the bandit fled.

Randolph was shot in the stomach. Physicians say he will not survive.

DISCUSSION OF EVANGELISM IN ALL FORMS

Should Efforts be Directed at Church Members as Well as Winning Converts.

Columbus, O., Jan. 4 (UP).—Whether evangelistic efforts of the churches should not be directed at church members as well as to the winning of converts is one question that will be raised at the Ohio Pastors' convention here, January 19 to 21.

An afternoon session of one of the sections or "commissions" of the convention will consider evangelism in all its phases, receiving the report of the committee on evangelism.

Other questions suggested by the committee for consideration are:

"What form of evangelistic appeal is most fruitful?"

"How can the churches of the community best cooperate in the work of evangelism?"

"What is the best method of securing prospects for the Christian life?"

Miss Ivy Myers spent the day in Columbus.

Niagara Falls Is Not Losing Its Scenic Splendor

Toronto, Can.—Despite erosion of the crest of Niagara falls, said to be at the rate of five feet a year, P. W. Ellis, chairman of the Queen Victoria Niagara falls park commission, expressed the opinion that there is no immediate danger of its losing its scenic splendor.

Mr. Ellis, commenting on the statement of Herbert C. Hoover, United States secretary of commerce, that the falls are "committing suicide," said that methods of preventing the erosion are known. He added that it was probable that the United States and Canada would soon take up the problem, and so distribute the flow of water that erosion would be reduced.

YANK SHOT WHILE FIGHTING CHINESE

Mother of Morgan Palmer Tells Story of Son's Fate.

Harbin, Manchuria.—Morgan Palmer, the American who was killed by Chinese bandits at his ranch on the Sungari river last month, met death while staging a warlike demonstration intended to frighten away the bandits.

This news was brought to Harbin by Palmer's mother and the son of Dr. Harvey J. Howard of the Rockefeller hospital in Pekin, who were at the ranch at the time. Doctor Howard, who also was visiting Palmer, was captured by the bandits and still is held for ransom.

Mrs. Palmer, relating the details of the fight, said that her son, rising early on the morning of July 20, declared his intention to take guns and go by automobile to show the bandits he was prepared for them if they should attack his ranch. Doctor Palmer had intended to take a river steamer for Harbin that day, but joined Palmer's party with his son. The others were a Russian chauffeur, Palmer's Chinese servant and a Russian boy.

Arriving at the village adjacent to the bandits' stronghold, the party got out and sent the car back for reinforcements but the Chinese guard in the village refused to accompany the party. Harold Baldwin, Palmer's ranch manager, returned with the chauffeur and tried to prevent further advance, knowing the bandits were well armed and mounted.

Dr. Howard Surrenders.

Palmer, however, insisted on going on. He led his party to a ruined temple four miles from his ranch and midway between two villages. Baldwin climbed to the top of the temple to reconnoiter. Palmer, Doctor Howard and the Chinese and Russian boys entered a nearby cornfield, while young Howard remained alone in the car. From the top of the temple Baldwin saw the bandits mount and prepare to make a sortie. He descended and started the car in pursuit of Palmer and his group and at the same time the bandits made a move to cut off their retreat, whereupon Baldwin swerved to pick up others of the party, who from the running board of the automobile carried on a running fight while making a dash for the ranch.

Meanwhile Palmer and those with him were encircled by another group of bandit horsemen. Doctor Howard and the Russian boy threw down their rifles and made signs of surrender, but Palmer and his Chinese servant continued firing.

Shot From Behind.

According to the Russian youth, the bandits dismounted and crept up behind Palmer, Indian fashion, shooting him through the head at close range and then killing the Chinese boy in a similar way.

Later the outlaws sent messengers to the Palmer ranch demanding money and ammunition. The defenders there who had gathered around Palmer's mother collected all the available funds and cartridges and went to make terms for the release of the prisoners who had surrendered, but found the bandits had decamped.

Bandits Flee From Troops.

Morgan Palmer's body was recovered and buried under a great oak near the ranch house, together with that of the Chinese boy, whom Palmer held in great affection. Howard Baldwin read the Episcopal service at the funeral.

Doctor Howard's captors crossed the Sungari river, foiling the efforts of Chinese troops to encircle them, and now are believed to be in the Kirin mountain district.

Samuel Sokobin, American consul at Mukden; Howard Baldwin and Roger Greene, business director of the Rockefeller hospital, are remaining at Funchin pending efforts to locate Doctor Howard and bring about his release. Funchin is 450 miles from Harbin and 20 miles from the Palmer ranch.

SUGGEST OHIO WHEAT FOR MAKING FLAKY PIE CRUST

Though Ohio's soft winter wheats don't command the market price that Western hard wheats do soft-wheat flour alone or a blend of the two can serve the housewife's needs just as well, farm crops and home economics specialists at the Ohio State University say.

For many home uses soft-wheat flours are just as good or better than the hard-wheat product. It is easier, home economics specialists have found, to make tender cake and flaky pie crust with soft-wheat flour. For thickening sauces, gravies, and the hundred and one other small household needs one kind is as good as another—and Ohio soft-wheat flour is cheaper.

To help housewives distinguish between soft-wheat and hard-wheat flours the U. S. Department of Agriculture offers these suggestions:

"The flours from soft-wheats have a velvety texture somewhat like corn starch, and those from hard-wheat are usually more gritty, but it requires some experience and a fine sense of touch to detect this difference.

"Experts usually do it by taking a pinch of flour and rubbing it lightly between the thumb and third finger. Another way is to squeeze a handful of it lightly and notice, as the hand is opened, whether the flour remains in a mold and shows the impression of the fingers. In this test a hard-wheat flour acts more like a powder and the mold breaks up more readily than that of a soft-wheat flour.

"Weighing is still another method. A quart of hard-wheat flour, sifted, once and dipped lightly into the measure, then leveled off, weighs about 16 or 17 ounces, or even more. A quart of soft-wheat flour sifted and measured in the same way weighs only about 14 or 15 ounces."

Value of Cowpea Hay

A ton of cowpea hay contains as much food value as does a ton of wheat bran. Still, the bran finds a ready market among farmers at from $30 to $40 per ton. Soy beans are very rich in nitrogen and consequently in protein since all protein must contain 16 per cent of nitrogen. Cowpeas and soy beans do not leave so much nitrogen in the soil as clover, but a considerable part of the nitrogen is left in the soil in the roots.

These Changing Times

The midland cities have changed. Apartment houses have risen on the vacant lots where football teams composed of wealthy boys once played against football teams composed of "muckers." At fourteen the wealthy boy is no longer anxious to have enormous muscles and to emulate Ted Coy of Yale, but to own a sport car and be a Ben Lyons—or even Michael Arlen.

The cheap literature of daring, of Nick Carter and Young Wild West, has vanished. It is a conquered world into which the post-war boy grows up; there are no outposts of civilization to grasp his imagination. He gets the impression that everything has been done. Instead of the Henty books he reads moving-picture magazines.—F. Scott Fitzgerald, in McCall's.

Lapland Impressions

Dora Lazarnick in the London News says these things most impressed her in Lapland, which she recently visited:

The absence of night.
The sight of a herd of reindeer fording a river, the young being towed across by holding on to the left ear of the mother.

That many of the wild flowers are the same as those of an English meadow.

The smallness of the trees.

The sad faces of the Lapp women.

That, unlike Switzerland, nothing is commercialized; one pays no admission fee to gorges and waterfalls, nor even to Lapp huts.

LOAN COMPANY PLANS NEW BUILDING APRIL 1

Buckeye Concern Announces Expectations at Thirty-First Birthday Celebration.

Columbus, Jan. 2.—A new building will house the Buckeye State Building and Loan Co., this year, the company announced yesterday on its thirty-first anniversary.

It will be located at Gay and Pearl streets, on the site now occupied by Keith's Theater. Construction is to start April 1, according to the announcement.

The company began operations 31 years ago in the Wesley Building, 101 North High street. Four years later a new home was erected in West Gay street and 10 years later a building was erected on this and an adjacent site, now known as 22 West Gay street. Steady growth of the company has forced it to seek still larger quarters.

It had resources of $31,206,523.33 on its thirty-first anniversary, and a surplus of $1,284,632.05, a growth in resources of $2,522,364 during 1924. A total of more than 68,000 customers are on its books. The company is the largest of its kind in Ohio and the third largest in the United States. During the 31 years of its existence no loss has been sustained by any investor, officers of the company said.

Tainted Cream Can' Dangerous

Flavors of Kerosene, Gasoline, Etc., Will Spoil Whole Churning.

The price paid for cream depends upon what the creamery can sell the butter for plus a reasonable profit. Butter is sold on the large markets according to quality. In order to make a good quality of butter, a butter-maker must have good quality cream. First-grade butter cannot be made out of all cream received at the creamery, because some of the cream will be tainted with onion, kerosene, gasoline and other flavors. Now if a firm can get 45 cents a pound for good butter, 20 cents a pound for onion butter and only grease prices for kerosene and gasoline butter, you can readily see the result. The price paid for all butterfat will depend upon the percentage of each kind of bum cream that is received. Let us consider kerosene and gasoline tainted cream and see if the producer is not losing money.

Oil Taints All Cream.

A slight trace of oil in a cream can will taint all the cream that it comes in contact with, which usually is an entire churning. An average churning in most plants is 1,000 pounds of butter, or a value of $450 with butter at 45 cents per pound. A 5-gallon can of cream of an average test with butterfat at 40 cents, will bring $4.80. Now if this 5-gallon can of cream is tainted with kerosene or gasoline, it will ruin the $450 churning, and that butter will have to be disposed of at grease prices. You can readily see that there is a large financial loss and the producer pays the bill.

Big Churning Lost.

One of the dairy inspectors happened to be in a cream station in eastern Colorado a short time ago when a producer delivered a 10-gallon can of cream. The producer cautioned the cream station operator to be sure and wash the can thoroughly, as he was going to take home some gasoline in the can. Another inspector reported that he was in a Denver plant and saw a 1,200-pound churning of kerosene butter. It is impossible to thoroughly cleanse a can after it has been filled with oil. You may think you can get it clean in that you can't smell the oil, but it will taint the cream just the same. If we had to use tin cream pitchers, you wouldn't think of using the same pitcher for cream on the table and to fill your kerosene lamp. Using cream cans to haul oil in is not unlawful, but results in a financial loss to the producer if the same can is used for dairy purposes again.—Colorado State Dairy Commission.

Two Important Factors to Get Alfalfa Stand

The two most important factors in getting a good stand of alfalfa are seed bed preparation and the use of pure adapted alfalfa seed, according to Kansas State Agricultural college agronomists. Alfalfa and small grass seeds should be planted in a finely pulverized moist soil, which contains a good supply of available plant food. Preparation should start early in the season, and at this time the seed bed should be put into final condition by frequent working with the disk, set straight, a cultipacker, a drag, or a harrow to firm the subsurface well and to smooth and pulverize the surface soil.

Most of the winter killing of alfalfa last winter and spring, was due to using southern grown, or imported seed, say agronomists who urge the use of only native grown seed free from weeds.

Rye Is Now Recommended for Winter Cow Pasture

Farmers who do not have wheat for fall and winter pasture for dairy cows should sow some rye, say dairymen at the Kansas State Agricultural college. One precaution that must be observed in pasturing dairy cows on rye, especially where milk is sold, is to remove the cows from pasture three or four hours before milking. This precaution will keep the milk from being tainted with the characteristic rye flavor, which is objectionable to some people. The college herd is pastured on rye from seven o'clock in the morning until one o'clock in the afternoon.

Produce Excellent Hay Crop by Sowing Timothy

When timothy is sown alone in the fall it produces an excellent hay crop the following summer, but when sown during late winter or early spring it is necessary to wait until the following year to get a hay crop.

Timothy may be sown with either wheat or rye. When sown with a nurse crop from 6 to 8 pounds of seed per acre should be used. When sown alone, about 10 pounds is the proper amount.

Clover, either sweet or red, may be sown with the timothy in the spring.

Double Value of Straw

Farmers imagine when they bale straw and sell it for enough to pay actual cost of baling and hauling that they are getting as much out of it as possible. Are they? Dry straw may not be of great value as fertilizer, but when mixed with fresh manure is worth more than doubled. More liberal use of bedding results in cleaner and healthier animals, and gives a larger amount of fertilizer.

Glorious Liberty

Liberty is tranquil because she is invincible, and invincible because she is contagious. Whoever attacks, gains her. The army sent against her rebounds upon the despot. That is why she is left in peace.—Victor Hugo.

Growth of Hair

Human hair grows at the rate of 18-1000 of an inch a day, and the life of an individual hair is about six years.

The Modern Salvager

Electricity is an efficient salvager. Electric cranes equipped with electromagnets handle great quantities of metal junk at the nation's 3,000 scrap yards. The larger sections of scrap are chewed up in enormous electric shears or smashed with a tremendous electric "skull-cracker." Nearly half the manufactured steel of the country comes from reclaimed iron and steel junk.

A CALLING MECricket Smith Defended by
Ted Lewis--The King of Syncopation.

"When you mention that the underworld gave us our jazz" writes Ted Lewis, "you are treating with the most cruel disrespect one of our great classes of vanishing Americans. I am referring to the colored barbers in the small towns thruout the country. In the old days before women bobbed their hair and Mr. Gillette made it possible for us to cut ourselves every morning with his safety razor, a shave and a haircut were a delightful social experience. One never went to these barber shops for a shave or a haircut alone. With them we got a stimulating crap game, some hot guitar playing and cdlose harmony, first view of the new Police Gazette and the most authoritative information about how to place our pennies on the ponies.

"It was in the barber shop of 'Cricket' Smith in Circleville, Ohio, that I first learned the gentle art of jazz some fifteen years ago, when I should have been getting a haircut or delivering packages from my father's store. And other jazzists of the present age of iniquity also learned their stuff from Negroes who were jazzing away even before the underworld had learned the turkey trot.

"Cricket's association with the underworld was most remote, altho his ability to throw a long succession of naturals would have stood him in good stead in any world, under or upper. But, alas! those days are gone. The old colored barbers, too have gone in for higher things. They no longer have time for close harmony syncopation, for they are busy bobbing hair and giving salesmanship talks on tonics necessary to supply the revenue lost when the nation began shaving itself. And the higher literature of the Police Gazette has been forced to give way to magazines with a mission.

"And just imagine: In 'Cricket' Smith's old shop they now have a manicurist and a boy who brushes you off. And the new generation is growing up with a most tragic ignorance of dice percentage and long shots at Latonia."—Ted Lewis in New York World.

31dec20.Line in Lingerie
to Follow FrockLatest Underthings Feature
Harmony Trend Seen in Outer Garments.

Harmony has been gaining such sway in the fashion world that it has now penetrated the realm of underthings, with the result that the new lingerie models feature the fall trend seen in outer garments. In other words, says a fashion correspondent in the New York Times, the line in underwear must correspond with that of the frock worn.

Georgette in exquisite pastel shades, and crepe de chine in white and shell pink are used in models for evening wear. A three-piece dance set in apricot georgette is trimmed with hand-made lace. Fullness in the step-ins is achieved by insets of tiny plaits, which are outlined with the lace. Instead of shoulder straps, three velvet-covered elastic bands hold the narrow bandeau in place. These are stretched across the back and fastened under the arms by small rosebuds. Shired ruffles of lace and rosebuds add a Colonial touch to the garters.

The flare plays an important part in a three-piece model of heavy white crepe satin. Double folds of georgette serve as the only trimming, and when used in the tops of chemise and slip further carry out the new silhouette. Godets of the georgette plaited are placed around the bottom of the slip and at the sides of the chemise. Narrow pipings of georgette are used in the double shoulder straps of both garments and to trim the garters.

Crepe de chine, crepe satin and handkerchief linen are sponsored in many of the two and three-piece models destined for daytime wear. Lace and net in a variety of interesting designs provide the main trimming for these garments, while the more tailored models emphasize the use of fine hand embroidery and drawn work. Many show borders of contrasting colors, and a few have edges of real filet and Irish picot.

Attention to cut and finish are the outstanding features of the new one-piece tailored models to be worn with sports clothes. Broadcloth and heavy crepe satin are the favored materials. To permit freedom of movement a band of knitted fabric is inserted at the lower back. In the absence of trimming of any kind, great stress is laid on the finish. Glove-silk underwear has become a byword, in fact so much so that very little variation from the staple styles has been noted in the models now on display. Its clinging tendencies, however, make it a boon to the stout woman, who wisely will have nothing of georgette or the crepe varieties.

In many instances the effect of an evening gown depends upon the selection of the proper slip. One safe rule to follow is to bear in mind the lines of the dress. If the gown is slightly fitted select a slip having the same lines, but in no case wear a full slip with a slender gown. Slips of georgette, chiffon and crepe are favored for evening wear. Fitted bodices and fullness in the lower parts of these garments are further evidence of the new silhouette in underwear. Most of the models for daytime are cut on a long waistline with just sufficient fullness in the skirts to permit comfort in walking. Satin and woven silks in the darker shades are very desirable in this type of garment.

How Gilt Edging Is Used
to Enrich Velours Hat

The velours hat is one of the season's favorites. It is worn upon all occasions with handsome street suits or with informal sports clothes. The hat shown here is black velours decorated with gilt edging.

Frocks in Tiers

Women have already derived a certain amount of satisfaction from tears. Perhaps that is why they are now crying for tiers. Some of the most popular afternoon frocks are constructed entirely of tiers of chiffon. The gowns are built just like a clapboard house, but one does not have to possess an English college style of figure to wear such a frock with satisfaction.

The Writing
Lady

By ELLA SAUNDERS

(© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

"MISS MARTIN, we're powerful glad to see you here again," said kindly Mrs. Pringle.

Doris Martin descended at the door of the farm house happily. She was always happy to get back to queer, simple, isolated Pleasant Valley, among these delightful, primitive people.

Doris Martin was an author, and quite a famous one. "The writing lady," they called her in the little settlement. She had spent the summer before in the valley and had embodied her experiences in a novel that had run into fifty thousand.

Queer, lovable people she had made them. There was old Silas Grigg, the deacon, an inimitable character who had really been the success of the book. There were half the young men and young women of the valley. And above all there was Mrs. Pringle.

Elizabeth Pringle, the kindly, middle-aged woman who was now welcoming her so hospitably, so ignorant of the fact that she, with the deacon, formed one of the central characters of the novel. Everything that was Elizabeth Pringle had gone into Doris' book, her queer ways, her homely speech, her simplicity.

Yes, Mrs. Pringle had been a find indeed. There were few Mrs. Pringles anywhere but in Pleasant Valley.

For a few moments, as Doris entered the pleasant, homely little sitting room, as they called it locally, her heart misgave her. She felt that she had been guilty of a sort of treachery to her kind hostess to embody her in the novel—no, not to embody her, but to make gentle ridicule of her in the way she had done.

Still, it was for the sake of art. That fact consoled her. It was legitimate to use all material that came one's way.

And then it was not as if Mrs. Pringle would ever know. Books never came into Pleasant Valley—at least, Doris Martin had never seen any, except the Bible and hymn books. If Mrs. Pringle did ever learn—Doris shuddered to think how she would feel. Very badly, undoubtedly. But there was no chance of that.

Mrs. Pringle was kinder than ever and treated her more respectfully than ever. And it was really quite like a scene out of her own book when Deacon Grigg came in after supper and sat with them in the little low-ceilinged room, talking of the crops and the flocks, and detailing the local news.

And then the real secret came out. "Yes, Marm, Mrs. Pringle and me alms to git married next month after the corn's been stacked. We've been kind of courting"—he glanced shyly at Mrs. Pringle—"off and on these three years past, and we allow we're old enough to know our own minds."

"I congratulate you very sincerely," said Doris; and she thought she simply must get this scene into her next novel.

Deacon Grigg's next words left Doris cold and quivering.

"We was reading that there book you wrote, Miss, 'Happy Valley,'" he said. "Mrs. Pringle and me used to set here a-reading it over the stove night after night last winter. And laugh—say, we laughed fit to split ourselves, seeing all the queer characters you got into it—old Hank, the liverman, and Miss Jane, the school teacher. And we had to let 'em all read it after we got through."

Doris sat like a stone, overcome with horror. She had never dreamed that these people would discover her novel.

"It's good and true, Miss," said Deacon Grigg, "and I guess you ain't got such a long way to go now before you git to the top of the tree in this here writing business. Lord, how we laughed when you brought in them funny sayings of mine and Mrs. Pringle here. That's what I calls a real book, Miss Martin, a book that makes folks feel and think and reckonize themselves, not this sort of trash that so many authors writes."

Mrs. Pringle nodded and whispered, and the Deacon changed the subject. A little later Doris rose to go to bed.

But she sat in her room a long time, half-stunned still to think that they had read her book, and had taken it all so kindly.

"My next novel of Pleasant Valley will be a real one," Doris said. For she felt that at last she had come to understand the valley as she had not done before.

All Whales Alike to Him.

At the docks of a large seaport town the remarkable coincidence was noticed of three steam trawlers lying berthed side by side, their names being Rose, Shamrock and Thistle, respectively.

"What a pity Wales is not represented," remarked a visitor. "That would have completed the coincidence."

"Don't worry about that, guv'nor," replied the old salt to whom the remark was addressed, "I expect there's a leak in one of 'em."

Only Another Ham.

Dr. C. F. Curtis of Iowa State college was motoring through the country when he encountered a small boy busily engaged in "herding" one pig.

"My boy," he asked, "aren't you spending a lot of time in herding this one pig?"

"Naw! His time ain't worth much," drawled the boy.

LIABILITY INSURANCE

What It Is and the Benefits That Accrue to the Policy Holders.

I wonder if you realize that every car owner is responsible to the public for the operation of his car, whether he drives it himself or allows others to drive it.

PUBLIC LIABILITY is an insurance term indicating the responsibility the car owner is under for injuries or death inflicted on persons thru the operation of his car.

It is most important of all automobile insurance features, owing to the unknown possibilities of the claims.

Some of the factors making accidents and consequent liability claims daily more numerous, and the owner's risk in operating a car an ever increasing one, are:

CONGESTION OF TRAFFIC. Roads are about the same width as formerly, yet traffic thereon has greatly increased. Between fifteen and twenty million motor vehicles are registered in the United States today. This vast number is being increased daily.

LOW PRICES OF SECOND-HAND CARS have added greatly to the number of irresponsible drivers, who menace all other users of the roads. The careful, sane driver is often the sufferer from the faults of others. IMPROVED HIGHWAYS are a constant temptation to speedsters and encourage less careful attention on the part of all drivers.

THE CHILDREN MUST PLAY, and there being very little yard space around the average city home, the playing is done in the path of the motorists. The heavy tolls of 1924 in life, injuries and property losses have been given wide publicity in the press of the country.

AMBULANCE-CHASING LAWYERS (and there is one or more in every city) make a business of creating cases against any car owner involved in an accident, whether or not it is serious, whether or not he is liable and particularly if he has property.

COURT CHARGES AND ATTORNEY'S FEES MUST BE PAID, and eventually, possibly a heavy judgment to be paid with interest and costs. The feelings, sympathies and judgments of juries are generally in favor of the injured and against the car owner. Verdicts for injuries or death run into thousands of dollars, and are larger than ever before. Even if you win, your expenses mount to a large figure.

An automobile liability guarantees the investigation of claims whether you are liable or not, adjusts, pays, fights your case if necessary, pays expenses, lawyer's fees and court costs, relieves you from responsibility and worry. It does all of this for the owner and for any one legally operating the car with the owner's permission.

If you are now carrying liability insurance, the above facts will serve to strengthen the conviction that led you to protect yourself.

This information, coupled with the fact that last year no fewer than twenty-eight states introduced bills for compulsory liability insurance, is conclusive evidence of the advisability of every car owner relieving himself of personal liability.

One of the recent batch of Florida stories had it that Brown, a former resident of Columbus, Ohio, had made a killing in Florida real estate. He had cleaned up $50,000 in three months at Miami, Fla., so the story went.
A former neighbor, hearing about it, became quite excited and hustled into Brown's brother's office and said: "By George, that's great about Bill making $50,000 in Florida in three months. It's just great, now, isn't it?"
Brown's brother said: "It wasn't in Florida, 'twas in California, and they got the story mixed just a little. It was three years and not three months."
"That doesn't make any difference," interrupted friend neighbor, full of enthusiasm. "By George, he made the money!"
Brown's brother continued: "They also got the amount wrong. It was $5,000 instead of $50,000, and—and he didn't make it—he lost it."—Forbes Magazine

SPREADING NEWS TWO HUNDRED YEARS AGO

New York Gazette an Early Periodical.

New York's first newspaper was published just 200 years ago. It was a modest little sheet less than one-fourth the size of a page of the Times and appeared weekly. A bronze tablet on the south side of the Cotton exchange marks the site of the office from which it was issued. A few fugitive "news letters" had appeared from time to time, but no regular publication was attempted before 1725. The first paper was known as the New York Gazette. In Boston a regular weekly paper was published at an earlier date.

There was not much news in the New York paper two centuries ago. The Gazette consisted of a single sheet, printed on both sides, its page two columns in width and the whole contents measuring less than one modern newspaper column.

In fact, the Gazette printed almost no local news. Foreign affairs were of superior interest. The first number devoted its first page to the text of a treaty between the emperor of Germany and the king of Spain. The second news feature was a "Remonstrance of the Clergy of France" presented to the king against a new tax of 2 per cent.

The only glimpse of local life in early New York offered by the Gazette is to be found in the advertisements. Each issue contains but from one to five advertisements. New York then gave promise of becoming a shipping center. "Scarcely a week passes," it appears, "without the arrival or departure of some seagoing vessel. Yet there were no ship news reporters on the Gazette staff. The Atlantic crossing then required two months or more.

The real estate announcements offered farms for sale down by the present crowded dead line. The suburbanite, however, was already flourishing, for there was a surprising number of "plantations" on sale in New Jersey and Long Island. In almost every number of the Gazette there were advertisements of slaves for sale. From time to time the name of a traveler passing through New York is mentioned. Otherwise all attempts at acquainting the public with local happenings ceases.

The Gazette managed to exist, though advertisements averaged only an inch or so weekly. A line across the last page announces that the paper is "to be sold by Richard Nickel, Post Master, where advertisements are taken in." It was not until 1744, when the paper had run for about nineteen years, that it achieved a circulation of 900 copies.—New York Times.

Jew Even Now Is Not at Home in Jerusalem

One morning, with much the same feeling as when I stepped from the pullman to the edge of the Grand canyon or entered Charley Brown's barber shop to get my first adolescent shave, I passed through the Jaffa gate, writes H. Bon-Shamar in the Menorah Journal. Ahead of me strode a lemonade vender, clinking his brass cups to call the thirsty to the pinkish mess that filled his enormous glass jar. From a distance rose the cry of an oriental market in the full swing of advertisement and vituperation. As I stumbled over the rough paving I was vaguely aware of the stone mass of the Tower of David. Once it was behind me I considered that after all my trepidation and dallying I was at length in Jerusalem. I raised my head and looked about. I saw the offices of a tourist agency.

I entered a long stone passage, lined with shops, more a flight of steps than a street. It was bound together with stone arches. It was hung with drapers' goods, dead sheep, shoes and kerchiefs. It was thronged with an unwashed multitude, their heads bobbing up from the lower depths as they climbed the grade, turbaned heads, skull-capped heads, veiled heads, wimpled heads (women of Bethlehem), tar-booshed heads, calpacked heads, derby-crowned heads, nose-and-eared heads. It choked with noise. It brayed with asses and tinkled with camels. It danced with gesticulation.

Vegetable, fruit and meat shops grew thicker, the odor of garlic began to mount, the earlocks fell longer, strings of sausage swung into view, and I saw a sign, "Nathan Straus Milk Station." I was in the Jewish quarter. There is pathos in the phrase, "Jewish quarter," and more in the reality it describes. One does not and cannot speak of a French quarter in Paris or an American quarter in Washington. But the Jew, traditional, orthodox, Yiddish-speaking or Sephardic Jew, native to the city for generations, is as much a stranger in Jerusalem as he is in London. Despite the fact that the majority of the population are Jews, Jerusalem is again as it was those thousands of years gone, one of the cities "which ye build not, yet ye dwell in them."

Time to Cut Alfalfa

A good time to cut the alfalfa is in late afternoon because the sun will not wilt the leaves too quickly and cause them to shatter. Hay cut in the morning will not cure right because the leaves will be quickly wilted by the hot sun; the stems will also be full of juice; and the leaves will be dry and may blow away before the stems are ready to stack.

AUTOMOBILE
PRESENTED BY
SCHOOL GIRLS

Mayor King, of New Lexington, Receives Gift in Appreciation of Leniency.

New Lexington, O., Jan. 4 (UP).—Charles W. King, Republican, recently retired as mayor of New Lexington, has an automobile in his garage today, the gift of four high school girls, reprimanded by King a few weeks ago.

The girls were riding with nine others in and on a "flivver" when cited by Marshal John Adams to appear before King.

King looked at the calendar, saw it was Friday, saw the 13 girls, learned they were celebrating New Lexington's victory at football and let them off with a slight reprimand.

Before going out of office, the automobile was given King, with an added gift of a box of candy.

Discover Communism
Is Taught in Schools

Investigation is being made of a report that schools for training communistic workers and missionaries are being conducted in this country, according to announcement made recently by Frank Clay Cross, national director of the American Legion. Such schools have been conducted at several localities over the country during the present summer, reports laid before the Legion commission indicate.

A special subcommittee was appointed to carry on the investigation for the commission. Its members are: Frank Sleh, Aberdeen, S. D., chairman; John B. Jessup, Wilmington, Del., and John Bullington, Belleville, Ill.

One school is the center of a special investigation by the committee. Fifty students are said to have been in training at this school, to be sent back to their communities and schools to spread communistic propaganda. The students are reported to have come from three states. That the doctrines of communism are being taught, Hayes, the instructor, admitted. Raising of the red flag in the United States is being openly advocated, according to reports. "The Constitution of the United States is the product of fraud," is a part of the curriculum of the Red schools.

Reports to the commission indicated that Soviet Russia has recently sent into the United States $360,000 for communistic propaganda. The commission reaffirmed its opposition to the Bolshevik regime in Russia by the government of the United States.

Four Cities Seeking
National Conventions

Florida wants the 1928 national convention of the American Legion. This was learned at the recent semi-annual conference of Legion officials at Orlando where the decision was made to bid for the 1928 meeting.

Miami was the unanimous selection by the real estate as their candidate for the convention. It is understood that the Miami Chamber of Commerce is ready to pledge $50,000 immediately for entertaining the convention and will put up as much more as may be necessary to provide royalty for it.

Philadelphia seems to be the popular choice for the 1928 convention city. The Quakers are seeking the 1926 meeting as a feature of the sesquicentennial celebration of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Paris, France, is widely favored for the 1927 convention. The project of meeting there is being investigated as to its feasibility. The French government will welcome the conclave with pleasure.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Mrs. Carl Frenk entertained seven little boy friends in honor of her son, Stanley's twelfth birthday anniversary, Friday. Ice cream and cake was served. The little fellows all enjoyed themselves and left wishing Stanley many more happy birthday anniversaries.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Reichelderfer entertained to a New Year's dinner. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Reichelderfer and daughter, Mary, Mrs. Milton Johnson and son, James, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCoy, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Hampshire and Mr. and Mrs. Leon Van Vliet.

The Jackson W. C. T. U. was entertained Wednesday afternoon, December 16, at the home of Mrs. John Fry. The meeting was in charge of President Ida Rader. Opening song "Work for Enforcement," Scripture 117 Psalm was read by Mrs. Rader. Prayer by Mrs. John Fry. Reading of the minutes and roll call by Mrs. George Shook. A short program was given after which Miss Mary Porter of Tarleton, gave a splendid and lengthy report of the national convention at Detroit, Michigan, of which she was a delegate. Another new member was enrolled, nine members and four visitors were present. The meeting closed with the regular benediction. A social time then followed during which time the hostess served a delicious lunch.

The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Wayne Hoover, January 13.

Nor is it likely that any effort will be made to legalize the pre-primary convention, altho this has been holding the center of the Republican stage in the past month.

It is probable that the session will be called for about January 15, and, altho it is scheduled for but one day it is probable that the old expedient of turning the clock back will be resorted to before the final approval on the emergency relief bill can be had.

YATES BUICK CAR STOLEN THIS MORNING

The seven passenger Buick car owned by Ben F. Yates was stolen at an early hour Monday morning. The car was placed in the garage on the rear of Mr. Yates' residence at 12 o'clock Sunday evening and it evidently was taken about 2 o'clock Monday morning. Mrs. F. T. Gearhart, whose home is close to the garage, heard a noise about this hour and it is presumed this was the time the car was stolen. Mr. Yates carried no theft insurance.

He is getting along as well as can be expected, but must return to the hospital in about three weeks for further treatment.

Facts About Falls

LIQUOR RING IS UNCOVERED IN COLUMBUS

Three Men Under Arrest and Fugitive Warrants Out for Thirty-Two Others.

Columbus, O., Jan. 4, (UP).—Convicted that they have struck a telling blow to the Ohio-Michigan illicit liquor traffic, federal authorities today promised new and more startling revelations in connection with the operations of an alleged Columbus-Detroit-Cleveland liquor ring.

With three men under arrest and fugitive warrants out for 32 persons including several former dry agents and three women who were "come-ons" for the ring's clientele, federal and state enforcement officers launched a last concerted drive in an attempt to hasten the ring's demise.

Thirty federal and state agents have been gathering evidence against the ring for three months.

Columbus, Detroit and Cleveland were the bases of the ring's operations, according to officers. Secret storage tanks were maintained at vantage points in the two states while a fleet of trucks kept the tanks filled. The alcohol, it was said, was obtained in Detroit. The points of dissemination, officers declared, also operated a delivery service and in addition members of the ring hi-jacked as side-line.

Morris Foreleicht and Joe Alshall, described as former dry agents, and the alleged ring-leaders, are under arrest here. Morris Weiss, 33, has been taken into custody at Cleveland and other arrests are imminent, officers declared.

A LONE BANDIT HOLDS UP INN NEAR TOLEDO

Toledo, O., Jan. 4 (UP).—A bandit who displayed two guns, firing them promiscuously, held up the Webster inn on the Dixie highway, near here early today, herded twenty-five patrons into a room, shot Charles Randolph, negro piano player and escaped with an undetermined amount of loot.

The bandit, known to police as "Hougho The Shiek" was identified by the proprietor of the inn as a waiter formerly employed there.

Dancing was at its height when the intruder entered. He clasped a pistol in each hand. A mash covered the upper portion of his face.

The shooting of Randolph was the outcome of a difference between the two when "the shiek" was employed there, police declared.

After herding his victims into the room, the bandit fled.

Randolph was shot in the stomach. Physicians say he will not survive.

DISCUSSION OF EVANGELISM IN ALL FORMS

Should Efforts be Directed at Church Members as Well as Winning Converts.

Columbus, O., Jan. 4 (UP).—Whether evangelistic efforts of the churches should not be directed at church members as well as to the winning of converts is one question that will be raised at the Ohio Pastors' convention here, January 19 to 21.

An afternoon session of one of the sections or "commissions" of the convention will consider evangelism in all its phases, receiving the report of the committee on evangelism.

Other questions suggested by the committee for consideration are:

"What form of evangelistic appeal is most fruitful?"

"How can the churches of the community best cooperate in the work of evangelism?"

"What is the best method of securing prospects for the Christian life?"

Miss Ivy Myers spent the day in Columbus.

Niagara Falls Is NotLosing Its Scenic Splendor

Toronto, Can.—Despite erosion of the crest of Niagara falls, said to be at the rate of five feet a year, P. W. Ellis, chairman of the Queen Victoria Niagara falls park commission, expressed the opinion that there is no immediate danger of its losing its scenic splendor.

Mr. Ellis, commenting on the statement of Herbert C. Hoover, United States secretary of commerce, that the falls are "committing suicide," said that methods of preventing the erosion are known. He added that it was probable that the United States and Canada would soon take up the problem, and so distribute the flow of water that erosion would be reduced.

YANK SHOT WHILE FIGHTING CHINESEMother of Morgan Palmer Tells Story of Son's Fate.

Harbin, Manchuria.—Morgan Palmer, the American who was killed by Chinese bandits at his ranch on the Sungari river last month, met death while staging a warlike demonstration intended to frighten away the bandits.

This news was brought to Harbin by Palmer's mother and the son of Dr. Harvey J. Howard of the Rockefeller hospital in Pekin, who were at the ranch at the time. Doctor Howard, who also was visiting Palmer, was captured by the bandits and still is held for ransom.

Mrs. Palmer, relating the details of the fight, said that her son, rising early on the morning of July 20, declared his intention to take guns and go by automobile to show the bandits he was prepared for them if they should attack his ranch. Doctor Palmer had intended to take a river steamer for Harbin that day, but joined Palmer's party with his son. The others were a Russian chauffeur, Palmer's Chinese servant and a Russian boy.

Arriving at the village adjacent to the bandits' stronghold, the party got out and sent the car back for reinforcements but the Chinese guard in the village refused to accompany the party. Harold Baldwin, Palmer's ranch manager, returned with the chauffeur and tried to prevent further advance, knowing the bandits were well armed and mounted.

Dr. Howard Surrenders.

Palmer, however, insisted on going on. He led his party to a ruined temple four miles from his ranch and midway between two villages. Baldwin climbed to the top of the temple to reconnoiter. Palmer, Doctor Howard and the Chinese and Russian boys entered a nearby cornfield, while young Howard remained alone in the car. From the top of the temple Baldwin saw the bandits mount and prepare to make a sortie. He descended and started the car in pursuit of Palmer and his group and at the same time the bandits made a move to cut off their retreat, whereupon Baldwin swerved to pick up others of the party, who from the running board of the automobile carried on a running fight while making a dash for the ranch.

Meanwhile Palmer and those with him were encircled by another group of bandit horsemen. Doctor Howard and the Russian boy threw down their rifles and made signs of surrender, but Palmer and his Chinese servant continued firing.

Shot From Behind.

According to the Russian youth, the bandits dismounted and crept up behind Palmer, Indian fashion, shooting him through the head at close range and then killing the Chinese boy in a similar way.

Later the outlaws sent messengers to the Palmer ranch demanding money and ammunition. The defenders there who had gathered around Palmer's mother collected all the available funds and cartridges and went to make terms for the release of the prisoners who had surrendered, but found the bandits had decamped.

Bandits Flee From Troops.

Morgan Palmer's body was recovered and buried under a great oak near the ranch house, together with that of the Chinese boy, whom Palmer held in great affection. Howard Baldwin read the Episcopal service at the funeral.

Doctor Howard's captors crossed the Sungari river, foiling the efforts of Chinese troops to encircle them, and now are believed to be in the Kirin mountain district.

Samuel Sokobin, American consul at Mukden; Howard Baldwin and Roger Greene, business director of the Rockefeller hospital, are remaining at Funchin pending efforts to locate Doctor Howard and bring about his release. Funchin is 450 miles from Harbin and 20 miles from the Palmer ranch.

SUGGEST OHIO WHEAT FOR MAKING FLAKY PIE CRUST

Though Ohio's soft winter wheats don't command the market price that Western hard wheats do soft-wheat flour alone or a blend of the two can serve the housewife's needs just as well, farm crops and home economics specialists at the Ohio State University say.

For many home uses soft-wheat flours are just as good or better than the hard-wheat product. It is easier, home economics specialists have found, to make tender cake and flaky pie crust with soft-wheat flour. For thickening sauces, gravies, and the hundred and one other small household needs one kind is as good as another—and Ohio soft-wheat flour is cheaper.

To help housewives distinguish between soft-wheat and hard-wheat flours the U. S. Department of Agriculture offers these suggestions:

"The flours from soft-wheats have a velvety texture somewhat like corn starch, and those from hard-wheat are usually more gritty, but it requires some experience and a fine sense of touch to detect this difference.

"Experts usually do it by taking a pinch of flour and rubbing it lightly between the thumb and third finger. Another way is to squeeze a handful of it lightly and notice, as the hand is opened, whether the flour remains in a mold and shows the impression of the fingers. In this test a hard-wheat flour acts more like a powder and the mold breaks up more readily than that of a soft-wheat flour.

"Weighing is still another method. A quart of hard-wheat flour, sifted, once and dipped lightly into the measure, then leveled off, weighs about 16 or 17 ounces, or even more. A quart of soft-wheat flour sifted and measured in the same way weighs only about 14 or 15 ounces."

Value of Cowpea Hay

A ton of cowpea hay contains as much food value as does a ton of wheat bran. Still, the bran finds a ready market among farmers at from $30 to $40 per ton. Soy beans are very rich in nitrogen and consequently in protein since all protein must contain 16 per cent of nitrogen. Cowpeas and soy beans do not leave so much nitrogen in the soil as clover, but a considerable part of the nitrogen is left in the soil in the roots.

These Changing Times

The midland cities have changed. Apartment houses have risen on the vacant lots where football teams composed of wealthy boys once played against football teams composed of "muckers." At fourteen the wealthy boy is no longer anxious to have enormous muscles and to emulate Ted Coy of Yale, but to own a sport car and be a Ben Lyons—or even Michael Arlen.

The cheap literature of darling, of Nick Carter and Young Wild West, has vanished. It is a conquered world into which the post-war boy grows up; there are no outposts of civilization to grasp his imagination. He gets the impression that everything has been done. Instead of the Henty books he reads moving-picture magazines.—F. Scott Fitzgerald, in McCall's.

Lapland Impressions

Dora Lazarnick in the London News says these things most impressed her in Lapland, which she recently visited:

The absence of night.

The sight of a herd of reindeer fording a river, the young being towed across by holding on to the left ear of the mother.

That many of the wild flowers are the same as those of an English meadow.

The smallness of the trees.

The sad faces of the Lapp women.

That, unlike Switzerland, nothing is commercialized; one pays no admission fee to gorges and waterfalls, nor even to Lapp huts.

Birthday Celebration.

Columbus, Jan. 2.—A new building will house the Buckeye State Building and Loan Co., this year, the company announced yesterday on its thirty-first anniversary.

It will be located at Gay and Pearl streets, on the site now occupied by Keith's Theater. Construction is to start April 1, according to the announcement.

The company began operations 31 years ago in the Wesley Building, 101 North High street. Four years later a new home was erected in West Gay street and 10 years later a building was erected on this and an adjacent site, now known as 22 West Gay street. Steady growth of the company has forced it to seek still larger quarters.

It had resources of $31,206.52 on its thirty-first anniversary, and a surplus of $1,284,632.05, a growth in resources of $2,522,364 during 1924. A total of more than 68,000 customers are on its books. The company is the largest of its kind in Ohio and the third largest in the United States. During the 31 years of its existence no loss has been sustained by any investor, officers of the company said.

Tainted Cream Can Dangerous

Flavors of Kerosene, Gasoline, Etc., Will Spoil
Whole Churning.

The price paid for cream depends upon what the creamery can sell the butter for plus a reasonable profit. Butter is sold on the large markets according to quality. In order to make a good quality of butter, a butter-maker must have good quality cream. First-grade butter cannot be made out of all cream received at the creamery, because some of the cream will be tainted with onion, kerosene, gasoline and other flavors. Now if a firm can get 45 cents a pound for good butter, 20 cents a pound for onion butter and only grease prices for kerosene and gasoline butter, you can readily see the result. The price paid for all butterfat will depend upon the percentage of each kind of cream that is received. Let us consider kerosene and gasoline tainted cream and see if the producer is not losing money.

Oil Taints All Cream.

A slight trace of oil in a cream can will taint all the cream that it comes in contact with, which usually is an entire churning. An average churning in most plants is 1,000 pounds of butter, or a value of $450 with butter at 45 cents per pound. A 5-gallon can of cream of an average test with butterfat at 40 cents, will bring $4.80. Now if this 5-gallon can of cream is tainted with kerosene or gasoline, it will ruin the $450 churning, and that butter will have to be disposed of at grease prices. You can readily see that there is a large financial loss and the producer pays the bill.

Big Churning Lost.

One of the dairy inspectors happened to be in a cream station in eastern Colorado a short time ago when a producer delivered a 10-gallon can of cream. The producer cautioned the cream station operator to be sure and wash the can thoroughly, as he was going to take home some gasoline in the can. Another inspector reported that he was in a Denver plant and saw a 1,200-pound churning of kerosene butter. It is impossible to thoroughly cleanse a can after it has been filled with oil. You may think you can get it clean in that you can't smell the oil, but it will taint the cream just the same. If we had to use tin cream pitchers, you wouldn't think of using the same pitcher for cream on the table and to fill your kerosene lamp. Using cream cans to haul oil in is not unlawful, but results in a financial loss to the producer if the same can is used for dairy purposes again.—Colorado State Dairy Commission.

Two Important Factors to Get Alfalfa Stand

The two most important factors in getting a good stand of alfalfa are seed bed preparation and the use of pure adapted alfalfa seed, according to Kansas State Agricultural college agronomists. Alfalfa and small grass seeds should be planted in a finely pulverized moist soil, which contains a good supply of available plant food. Preparation should start early in the season, and at this time the seed bed should be put into final condition by frequent working with the disk, set straight, a fultipacker, a drag, or a harrow to firm the subsurface well and to smooth and pulverize the surface soil.

Most of the winter killing of alfalfa last winter and spring, was due to using southern grown, or imported seed, say agronomists who urge the use of only native grown seed free from weeds.

Rye Is Now Recommended for Winter Cow Pasture

Farmers who do not have wheat for fall and winter pasture for dairy cows should sow some rye, say dairymen at the Kansas State Agricultural college. One precaution that must be observed in pasturing dairy cows on rye, especially where milk is sold, is to remove the cows from pasture three or four hours before milking. This precaution will keep the milk from being tainted with the characteristic rye flavor, which is objectionable to some people. The college herd is pastured on rye from seven o'clock in the morning until one o'clock in the afternoon.

Produce Excellent Hay

Crop by Sowing Timothy
When timothy is sown alone in the fall it produces an excellent hay crop the following summer, but when sown during late winter or early spring it is necessary to wait until the following year to get a hay crop.

Timothy may be sown with either wheat or rye. When sown with a nurse crop from 6 to 8 pounds of seed per acre should be used. When sown alone, about 10 pounds is the proper amount.

Clover, either sweet or red, may be sown with the timothy in the spring.

Double Value of Straw

Farmers imagine when they bale straw and sell it for enough to pay actual cost of baling and hauling that they are getting as much out of it as possible. Are they? Dry straw may not be of great value as fertilizer, but when mixed with fresh manure its worth is more than doubled. More liberal use of bedding results in cleaner and healthier animals, and gives a larger amount of fertilizer.

Glorious Liberty

Liberty is tranquil because she is invincible, and invincible because she is contagious. Whoever attacks, gains her. The army sent against her rebounds upon the despot. That is why she is left in peace.—Victor Hugo.

Growth of Hair

Human hair grows at the rate of 18-1000 of an inch a day, and the life of an individual hair is about six years.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

Cricket Smith Defended by
Ted Lewis--The King of Syncopation.

"When you mention that the underworld gave us our jazz" writes Ted Lewis, "you are treating with the most cruel disrespect one of our great classes of vanishing Americans. I am referring to the colored barbers in the small towns thruout the country. In the old days before women bobbed their hair and Mr. Gillette made it possible for us to cut ourselves every morning with his safety razor, a shave and a haircut were a delightful social experience. One never went to these barber shops for a shave or a haircut alone. With them we got a stimulating crap game, some hot guitar playing and close harmony, first view of the new Police Gazette and the most authoritative information about how to place our pennies on the ponies.

"It was in the barber shop of 'Cricket' Smith in Circleville, Ohio, that I first learned the gentle art of jazz some fifteen years ago, when I should have been getting a haircut or delivering packages from my father's store. And other jazzists of the present age of inquiry also learned their stuff from Negroes who were jazzing away even before the underworld had learned the turkey trot.

"'Cricket's association with the underworld was most remote, altho his ability to throw a long succession of naturals would have stood him in good stead in any world, under or upper. But, alas! those days are gone. The old colored barbers, too have gone in for higher things. They no longer have time for close harmony syncopation, for they are busy bobbing hair and giving salesmanship talks on tonics necessary to supply the revenue lost when the nation began shaving itself. And the higher literature of the Police Gazette has been forced to give way to magazines with a mission.

"And just imagine: In 'Cricket' Smith's old shop they now have a manicurist and a boy who brushes you off. And the new generation is growing up with a most tragic ignorance of dice percentage and long shots at Latonia."—Ted Lewis in New York World.

Line in Lingerie
to Follow Frock

Latest Underthings Feature
Harmony Trend Seen in
Outer Garments.

Harmony has been gaining such sway in the fashion world that it has now penetrated the realm of underthings, with the result that the new lingerie models feature the fall trend seen in outer garments. In other words, says a fashion correspondent in the New York Times, the line in underwear must correspond with that of the frock worn.

Georgette in exquisite pastel shades, and crepe de chine in white and shell pink are used in models for evening wear. A three-piece dance set in apricot georgette is trimmed with hand-made lace. Fullness in the step-ins is achieved by insets of tiny plaits, which are outlined with the lace. Instead of shoulder straps, three velvet-covered elastic bands hold the narrow bandeau in place. These are stretched across the back and fastened under the arms by small rosebuds. Shirred ruffles of lace and rosebuds add a Colonial touch to the garters.

The flare plays an important part in a three-piece model of heavy white crepe satin. Double folds of georgette serve as the only trimming, and when used in the tops of chemise and slip further carry out the new silhouette. Godets of the georgette plaited are placed around the bottom of the slip and at the sides of the chemise. Narrow pipings of georgette are used in the double shoulder straps of both garments and to trim the garters.

Crepe de chine, crepe satin and handkerchief linen are sponsored in many of the two and three-piece models destined for daytime wear. Lace and net in a variety of interesting designs provide the main trimming for these garments, while the more tailored models emphasize the use of fine hand embroidery and drawn work. Many show borders of contrasting colors, and a few have edges of real filet and Irish picot.

Attention to cut and finish are the outstanding features of the new one-piece tailored models to be worn with sports clothes. Broadcloth and heavy crepe satin are the favored materials. To permit freedom of movement a band of knitted fabric is inserted at the lower back. In the absence of trimming of any kind, great stress is laid on the finish. Glove-silk underwear has become a byword, in fact so much so that very little variation from the staple styles has been noted in the models now on display. Its clinging tendencies, however, make it a bing to the stout woman, who wisely will have nothing of georgette or the crepe varieties.

In many instances the effect of an evening gown depends upon the selection of the proper slip. One safe rule to follow is to bear in mind the lines of the dress. If the gown is slightly fitted select a slip having the same lines, but in no case wear a full slip with a slender gown. Slips of georgette, chiffon and crepe are favored for evening wear. Fitted bodices and fullness in the lower parts of these garments are further evidence of the new silhouette in underwear. Most of the models for daytime are cut on a long waistline with just sufficient fullness in the skirts to permit comfort in walking. Satin and woven silks in the darker shades are very desirable in this type of garment.

How Gilt Edging Is Used
to Enrich Velours Hat

The velours hat is one of the season's favorites. It is worn upon all occasions with handsome street suits or with informal sports clothes. The hat shown here is black velours decorated with gilt edging.

Frocks in Tiers

Women have already derived a certain amount of satisfaction from tiers. Perhaps that is why they are now crying for tiers. Some of the most popular afternoon frocks are constructed entirely of tiers of chiffon. The gowns are built just like a claspboard house, but one does not have to possess an English college style of figure to wear such a frock with satisfaction.

The Writing
Lady

By ELLA SAUNDERS

(© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

"MISS MARTIN, we're powerful glad to see you here again," said kindly Mrs. Pringle.

Doris Martin descended at the door of the farm house happily. She was always happy to get back to queer, simple, isolated Pleasant Valley, among these delightful, primitive people.

Doris Martin was an author, and quite a famous one. "The writing lady," they called her in the little settlement. She had spent the summer before in the valley and had embodied her experiences in a novel that had run into fifty thousand.

Queer, lovable people she had made them. There was old Silas Grigg, the deacon, an inimitable character who had really been the success of the book. There were half the young men and young women of the valley. And above all there was Mrs. Pringle.

Elizabeth Pringle, the kindly, middle-aged woman who was now welcoming her so hospitably, so ignorant of the fact that she, with the deacon, formed one of the central characters of the novel. Everything that was Elizabeth Pringle had gone into Doris' book, her queer ways, her homely speech, her simplicity.

Yes, Mrs. Pringle had been a find indeed. There were few Mrs. Pringles anywhere but in Pleasant Valley.

For a few moments, as Doris entered the pleasant, homely little sitting room, as they called it locally, her heart misgave her. She felt that she had been guilty of a sort of treachery to her kind hostess to embody her in the novel—no, not to embody her, but to make gentle ridicule of her in the way she had done.

Still, it was for the sake of art. That fact consoled her. It was legitimate to use all material that came one's way.

And then it was not as if Mrs. Pringle would ever know. Books never came into Pleasant Valley—at least, Doris Martin had never seen any, except the Bible and hymn books. If Mrs. Pringle did ever learn—Doris shuddered to think how she would feel. Very badly, undoubtedly. But there was no chance of that.

Mrs. Pringle was kinder than ever and treated her more respectfully than ever. And it was really quite like a scene out of her own book when Deacon Grigg came in after supper and sat with them in the little low-ceilinged room, talking of the crops and the flocks, and detailing the local news.

And then the real secret came out. "Yes, Marm, Mrs. Pringle and me alms to git married next month after the corn's been stacked. We've been kind of courting"—he glanced shyly at Mrs. Pringle—"off and on these three years past, and we allow we're old enough to know our own minds."

"I congratulate you very sincerely," said Doris; and she thought she simply must get this scene into her next novel.

Deacon Grigg's next words left Doris cold and quivering.

"We was reading that there book you wrote, Miss, 'Happy Valley,'" he said. "Mrs. Pringle and me used to set here a-reading it over the stove night after night last winter. And laugh—say, we laughed till to split ourselves, seeing all the queer characters you got into it—old Hank, the liveryman, and Miss Jane, the school teacher. And we had to let 'em all read it after we got through."

Doris sat like a stone, overcome with horror. She had never dreamed that these people would discover her novel. "It's good and true, Miss," said Deacon Grigg, "and I guess you ain't got such a long way to go now before you git to the top of the tree in this here writing business. Lord, how we laughed when you brought in them funny sayings of mine and Mrs. Pringle here. That's what I calls a real book, Miss Martin, a book that makes folks feel and think and reckonize themselves, not this sort of trash that so many authors writes."

Mrs. Pringle nodded and whispered, and the Deacon changed the subject. A little later Doris rose to go to bed.

But she sat in her room a long time, half-stunned still to think that they had read her book, and had taken it all so kindly.

"My next novel of Pleasant Valley will be a real one," Doris said. For she felt that at last she had come to understand the valley as she had not done before.

All Whales Alike to Him.

At the docks of a large seaport town the remarkable coincidence was noticed of three steam trawlers lying berthed side by side, their names being Rose, Shamrock and Thistle, respectively.

"What a pity Wales is not represented," remarked a visitor. "That would have completed the coincidence."

"Don't worry about that, guv'nor," replied the old salt to whom the remark was addressed, "I expect there's a leak in one of 'em."

Only Another Ham.

Dr. C. F. Curtis of Iowa State college was motoring through the country when he encountered a small boy busily engaged in "herding" one pig.

"My boy," he asked, "aren't you spending a lot of time in herding this one pig?"

"Naw! His time ain't worth much," drawled the boy.

WE PRINT THE NEWS

LIABILITY INSURANCE

What It Is and the Benefits That Accrue to the Policy Holders.

I wonder if you realize that every car owner is responsible to the public for the operation of his car, whether he drives it himself or allows others to drive it.

PUBLIC LIABILITY is an insurance term indicating the responsibility the car owner is under for injuries or death inflicted on persons thru the operation of his car.

It is most important of all automobile insurance features, owing to the unknown possibilities of the claims.

Some of the factors making accidents and consequent liability claims daily more numerous, and the owner's risk in operating a car an ever increasing one, are:

CONGESTION OF TRAFFIC. Roads are about the same width as formerly, yet traffic thereon has greatly increased. Between fifteen and twenty million motor vehicles are registered in the United States today. This vast number is being increased daily.

LOW PRICES OF SECOND-HAND CARS have added greatly to the number of irresponsible drivers, who menace all other users of the roads. The careful, sane driver is often the sufferer from the faults of others. IMPROVED HIGHWAYS are a constant temptation to speedsters and encourage less careful attention on the part of all drivers.

THE CHILDREN MUST PLAY, and there being very little yard space around the average city home, the playing is done in the path of the motorists. The heavy tolls of 1924 in life, injuries and property losses have been given wide publicity in the press of the country.

AMBULANCE-CHASING LAWYERS (and there is one or more in every city) make a business of creating cases against any car owner involved in an accident, whether or not it is serious, whether or not he is liable and particularly if he has property.

COURT CHARGES AND ATTORNEY'S FEES MUST BE PAID, and eventually, possibly a heavy judgment to be paid with interest and costs. The feelings, sympathies and judgments of juries are generally in favor of the injured and against the car owner. Verdicts for injuries or death run into thousands of dollars, and are larger than ever before. Even if you win, your expenses mount to a large figure.

An automobile liability guarantees the investigation of claims whether you are liable or not, adjusts, pays, fights your case if necessary, pays expenses, lawyer's fees and court costs, relieves you from responsibility and worry. It does all of this for the owner and for any one legally operating the car with the owner's permission.

If you are now carrying liability insurance, the above facts will serve to strengthen the conviction that led you to protect yourself.

This information, coupled with the fact that last year no fewer than twenty-eight states introduced bills for compulsory liability insurance, is conclusive evidence of the advisability of every car owner relieving himself of personal liability.

Human Coyotes Prey on

Settlers in Mojave Desert

Los Angeles, Cal.—Gone is the chivalry of the old West; gone is the hospitality to every wayfarer. Instead there is suspicion and mistrust.

The cause is the "desert coyote," skulking humans that prey upon the homestead property unprotected for a few months while the owner is on government leave of absence.

On the Mojave desert the settlers are in arms and more than 100 complaints have been filed within the last few months with Brainerd B. Smith, register of the United States land office in Los Angeles. Thousands of dollars' worth of property has been stolen from homesteads by systematic marauders. "What a contrast to the days of '49," Register Smith said. "It was the honored custom then to leave the doors unlocked and a traveler had perfect freedom with the food and utensils."

"This code of honor was part of the 'winning of the West,' and a visitor always carefully cleaned and replaced every article used in cooking or sleeping at the premises."

Register Smith has asked the Department of Justice to start an investigation of conditions on the Mojave and evolve means of protection for the struggling homesteader.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

AMUSEMENTS

"The Pony Express," produced for Paramount by James Cruze and opening a run of three days at the Metropolitan theater is a well knit and thrilling story of the west just prior to the election of President Lincoln, when California was hesitating between North and South, showing the inauguration and operation of the famous Pony Express and giving a glimpse of the young Mark Twain.

Jack Weston, a debonair gambler and a dead shot, has been condemned to die because of his antislavery orations by Senator Glen, who leads the Southern cause in California, but he escapes and goes to Julesburg, where he becomes a Pony Express rider.

His rival for the hand of Molly Stevens is Slade, superintendent of the Overland Stage company, a notorious "bad man" who tries to discredit Weston in the eyes of Molly and who later makes an unsuccessful attempt on his life. Slade has arranged with Glen to suppress the news of Lincoln's election in order that California may be swung over to the Southern side, that state being an important factor in the fight against slavery.

The story tells of the defeat of Slade's plans by Weston's wit and daring Weston assists in the defense of Julesburg against a band of Indians led by a half-breed in league with Slade. Weston wins the girl and is later elected to political office.

This is a story combining historical fact with the element of romance that distinguished the west of former days.

Betty Compson, Ricardo Cortez, Ernest Torrence and Wallace Beery are featured in the cast of the production. The story is by Henry James Forman and Walter Woods.

The biggest thing Cruze has done yet is what Paramount claims of "The Pony Express."

UNLAWFULTo Kill Swans Anywhere in the United States.

The 10-year closed season during which swans may not be hunted anywhere in the United States expires December 7, 1926. This restriction was made under the provisions of article 3 of the treaty between the United States and Great Britain enacted for the protection of birds migrating between the United States and Canada. The Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture, which makes this announcement, says that the Federal law to enforce the treaty also prohibits the taking of migratory birds except as permitted by regulations thereunder promulgated by the President. Therefore, even with the end of the 10-year closed season, it will still be unlawful to kill these birds at any time, until the migratory-bird treaty act regulations are amended to allow the "killing of swans" during a stated open season. An exception will be made for scientific purposes, however, under permit of the Secretary of Agriculture.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Each year there is one event to which the members of the younger set look forward with breathless interest—the Chi Delta Chi breakfast dance. This year the gayety and merriment of the dance exceeded that of all other years.

The dancing started at midnight and it was a happy crowd of young people that danced away the hours till morning. During the dance horns and whistles were distributed as favors and the noise heralded the New Year.

Ken Middaugh's Castle Farms orchestra put forth its best efforts and the music was the best that has been heard around here for some time.

At five o'clock the gay crowd had breakfast in the Warner hotel dining room. No prettier picture could be found than that of the room filled with prettily gowned young ladies and their escorts at the attractively decorated tables.

Centering the tables were lighted red candles tied with tulle bows and wound with green fern leaves.

The breakfast consisted of grape fruit, scrambled eggs, sausage, toast, jam and coffee.

There were a number of out-of-town guests at the dance, including Misses Sarah Roache, Betty Lea, of Columbus; Margaret Nelson and Katherine Ann Keyes, of Chicago; Celia Drasius, of Logan; Betty Bullard, of Kansas City and Victor Kolb, of Columbus; Merrill Black, of Troy and Mr. and Mrs. John Mains of Greenfield; Misses Wyladine Jones, Katherine Poore, of Jackson; Edward Callahan and Edward Jones, of Jackson; Blaine Matthews and Graves Williams, of Portsmouth; Myron Evans, Robert DeWolf, Chester Osborne and Jack Sylvester, of Annapolis; Misses Miriam Ruggles and Helen Bennett, of Circleville.—Chillicothe News-Advertiser.

Sunshine Best Agent for Sterilizing Utensils

In order to keep dairy utensils in a thoroughly sweet-smelling condition they should be kept out of doors where they have a chance to air out and become dry. Sunshine is one of the best agents for sterilizing utensils.

A convenient and practical way to do this is to use a rack with wooden pegs over which the utensils can be hung. This exposes them to the sun and air, both of which help to keep them in a sweet, sterile condition. Do not try to wipe the utensils dry, but simply scald them after they have been thoroughly washed, and then hang them over the pegs so that they may drain and dry. A dishcloth is often a source of contamination and does more harm than good.

In washing the strainer cloth it is advisable to first rinse it out in cold water. Then soak it in a hot solution of washing powder and then rinse out in clean, hot water. When clean it should be hung out in the sun to thoroughly dry.

Police records reveal that Rev. Buckles was arrested with four girls and four men on charges of disorderly conduct.

Slightly Exaggerated

One of the recent batch of Florida stories had it that Brown, a former resident of Columbus, Ohio, had made a killing in Florida real estate. He had cleaned up $50,000 in three months at Miami, Fla., so the story went.

A former neighbor, hearing about it, became quite excited and hustled into Brown's brother's office and said: "By George, that's great about Bill making $50,000 in Florida in three months. It's just great, now, isn't it?"

Brown's brother said: "It wasn't in Florida, 'twas in California, and they got the story mixed just a little. It was three years and not three months—"

"That doesn't make any difference," interrupted friend neighbor, full of enthusiasm. "By George, he made the money!"

Brown's brother continued: "They also got the amount wrong. It was $5,000 instead of $50,000, and—he didn't make it—he lost it."—Forbes Magazine

SPREADING NEWS TWO HUNDRED YEARS AGO

New York Gazette an Early Periodical.

New York's first newspaper was published just 200 years ago. It was a modest little sheet less than one-fourth the size of a page of the Times and appeared weekly. A bronze tablet on the south side of the Cotton exchange marks the site of the office from which it was issued. A few fugitive "news letters" had appeared from time to time, but no regular publication was attempted before 1725. The first paper was known as the New York Gazette. In Boston a regular weekly paper was published at an earlier date.

There was not much news in the New York paper two centuries ago. The Gazette consisted of a single sheet, printed on both sides, its page two columns in width and the whole contents measuring less than one modern newspaper column.

In fact, the Gazette printed almost no local news. Foreign affairs were of superior interest. The first number devoted its first page to the text of a treaty between the emperor of Germany and the king of Spain. The second news feature was a "Remonstrance of the Clergy of France" presented to the king against a new tax of 2 per cent.

The only glimpse of local life in early New York offered by the Gazette is to be found in the advertisements. Each issue contains but from one to five advertisements. New York then gave promise of becoming a shipping center. "Scarcely a week passes," it appears, "without the arrival or departure of some seagoing vessel. Yet there were no ship news reporters on the Gazette staff. The Atlantic crossing then required two months or more.

The real estate announcements offered farms for sale down by the present crowded dead line. The suburbanite, however, was already flourishing, for there was a surprising number of "plantations" on sale in New Jersey and Long Island. In almost every number of the Gazette there were advertisements of slaves for sale. From time to time the name of a traveler passing through New York is mentioned. Otherwise all attempts at acquainting the public with local happenings ceases.

The Gazette managed to exist, though advertisements averaged only an inch or so weekly. A line across the last page announces that the paper is "to be sold by Richard Nickel, Post Master, where advertisements are taken in." It was not until 1744, when the paper had run for about nineteen years, that it achieved a circulation of 900 copies.—New York Times.

Jew Even Now Is Not at Home in Jerusalem

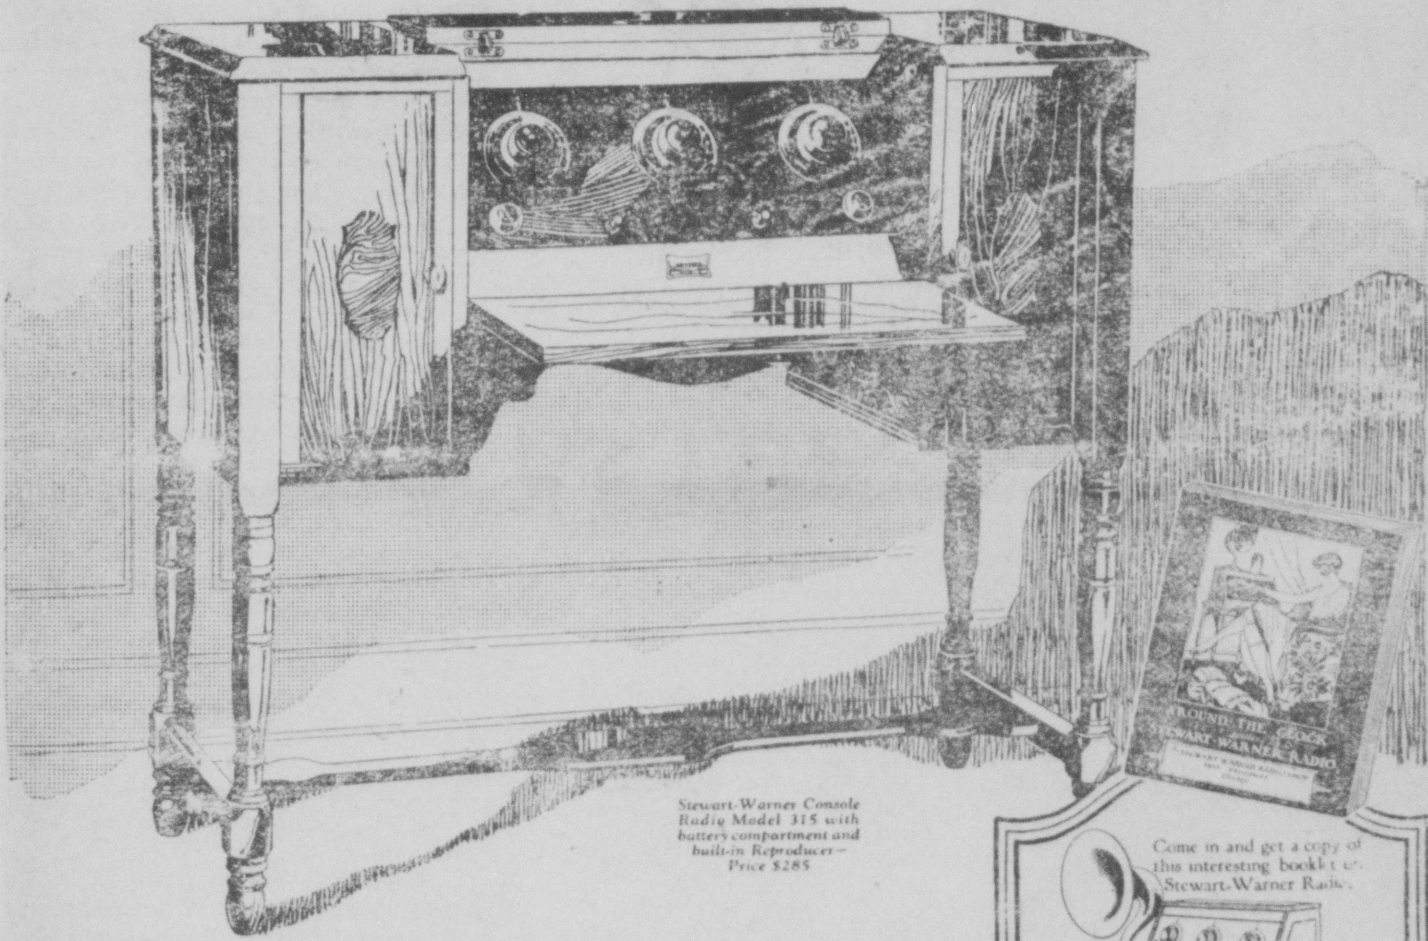

One morning, with much the same feeling as when I stepped from the pullman to the edge of the Grand canyon or entered Charley Brown's barber shop to get my first adolescent shave, I passed through the Jaffa gate, writes H. Bon-Shamar in the Menorah Journal. Ahead of me strode a lemonade vender, clinking his brass cups to call the thirsty to the pinkish mess that filled his enormous glass jar. From a distance rose the cry of an oriental market in the full swing of advertisement and vituperation. As I stumbled over the rough paving I was vaguely aware of the stone mass of the Tower of David. Once it was behind me I considered that after all my trepidation and dallying I was at length in Jerusalem. I raised my head and looked about. I saw the offices of a tourist agency.

I entered a long stone passage, lined with shops, more a flight of steps than a street. It was bound together with stone arches. It was hung with drapers' goods, dead sheep, shoes and kerchiefs. It was thronged with an unwashed multitude, their heads bobbing up from the lower depths as they climbed the grade, turbaned heads, skull-capped heads, veiled heads, wimpled heads (women of Bethlehem), tar-booshed heads, calpacked heads, derby-crowned heads, nose-and-ear-ringed heads. It choked with noise. It brayed with asses and tinkled with camels. It danced with gesticulation.

Vegetable, fruit and meat shops grew thicker, the odor of garlic began to mount, the earlocks fell longer, strings of sausage swung into view, and I saw a sign, "Nathan Straus Milk Station." I was in the Jewish quarter. There is pathos in the phrase, "Jewish quarter," and more in the reality it describes. One does not and cannot speak of a French quarter in Paris or an American quarter in Washington. But the Jew, traditional, orthodox, Yiddish-speaking or Sephardic Jew, native to the city for generations, is as much a stranger in Jerusalem as he is in London. Despite the fact that the majority of the population are Jews, Jerusalem is again as it was those thousands of years gone, one of the cities "which ye build not, yet ye dwell in them."

Time to Cut Alfalfa

A good time to cut the alfalfa is in late afternoon because the sun will not wilt the leaves too quickly and cause them to shatter. Hay cut in the morning will not cure right because the leaves will be quickly wilted by the hot sun; the stems will also be full of juice; and the leaves will be dry and may blow away before the stems are ready to stack.

SCHOOL GIRLS

Mayor King, of New Lexington, Receives Gift in Appreciation of Leniency.

New Lexington, O., Jan. 4 (UP).—Charles W. King, Republican, recently retired as mayor of New Lexington, has an automobile in his garage today, the gift of four high school girls, reprimanded by King a few weeks ago.

The girls were riding with nine others in and on a "flivver" when cited by Marshal John Adams to appear before King.

King looked at the calendar, saw it was Friday, saw the 13 girls, learned they were celebrating New Lexington's victory at football and let them off with a slight reprimand.

Before going out of office, the automobile was given King, with an added gift of a box of candy.

Discover Communism
Is Taught in Schools

Investigation is being made of a report that schools for training communistic workers and missionaries are being conducted in this country, according to announcement made recently by Frank Clay Cross, national director of the Americanism commission of the American Legion. Such schools have been conducted at several localities over the country during the present summer, reports laid before the Legion commission indicate.

A special subcommittee was appointed to carry on the investigation for the commission. Its members are: Frank Sleib, Aberdeen, S. D., chairman; John B. Jessup, Wilmington, Del., and John Bullington, Belleville, Ill.

One school is the center of a special investigation by the committee. Fifty students are said to have been in training at this school, to be sent back to their communities and schools to spread communistic propaganda. The students are reported to have come from three states. That the doctrines of communism are being taught, Hayes, the instructor, admitted. Raising of the red flag in the United States is being openly advocated, according to reports. "The Constitution of the United States is the product of fraud," is a part of the curriculum of the Red schools.

Reports to the commission indicated that Soviet Russia has recently sent into the United States $360,000 for communistic propaganda. The commission reaffirmed its opposition to the Bolshevik regime in Russia by the government of the United States.

Four Cities Seeking
National Conventions

Florida wants the 1928 national convention of the American Legion. This was learned at the recent semi-annual conference of Legion officials at Orlando where the decision was made to bid for the 1928 meeting.

Miami was the unanimous selection by the real estate as their candidate for the convention. It is understood that the Miami Chamber of Commerce is ready to pledge $50,000 immediately for entertaining the convention and will put up as much more as may be necessary to provide royalty for it. Philadelphia seems to be the popular choice for the 1926 convention city. The Quakers are seeking the 1926 meeting as a feature of the sesquicentennial celebration of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Paris, France, is widely favored for the 1927 convention. The project of meeting there is being investigated as to its feasibility. The French government will welcome the conclave with pleasure.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Mrs. Carl Frenk entertained seven little boy friends in honor of her son, Stanley's twelfth birthday anniversary, Friday. Ice cream and cake was served. The little fellows all enjoyed themselves and left wishing Stanley many more happy birthday anniversaries.

A short program was given after which Miss Mary Porter of Tarlton, gave a splendid and lengthy report of the national convention at Detroit, Michigan, of which she was a delegate. Another new member was enrolled, nine members and four visitors were present. The meeting closed with the regular benediction. A social time then followed during which time the hostess served a delicious lunch.

The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Wayne Hoover, January 13.

Accident Brings Invention

Backgrounds for Furniture

Sturdy pieces of furniture take rough plastered walls, stippled effects or wallpaper with peasant or quaint designs. Delicate slender-line furniture requires walls of smooth plaster finished in soft shades or wallpaper with more refined patterns.
